

Biography

Tammy Goodrich is an artist currently living in beautiful Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. She was born and raised in Wakefield, Virginia, where she developed a passion for drawing in elementary school and was encouraged by teachers and private lessons. In high school, Tammy was fortunate to have teachers that were well-respected artists in the area. In her adult life, she nurtured her creativity with gardening, crafting, decorating, knitting, all the while continuing to notice the colors, the light and the beauty of her ordinary world. As the pace of life began to slow, Tammy again found herself drawn to art, specifically painting. In 2012, she took an oil painting workshop and her artistic spark and desire to paint was re-ignited. Since her retirement in 2016, Tammy has found much joy and satisfaction in learning by attending classes and workshops and developing a regular painting practice. Her artwork can be found at Dare Arts in downtown Manteo, where she had her first solo show in 2024.
